Ammo plant not in budget, may be listed for closure

BY D.C. HARVILL
When President George Bush reveals his proposed budget for fiscal 1991 it will not include funding for the Mississippi Army Ammunition Plant, according to a Gannett News Service article in Saturday's Clarion Ledger.

Other news reports on Friday said the plant apparently is not on a list of military installations slated for closure compiled by Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney. But, according to a spokesperson in Congressman Gene Taylor's office those reports may not be accurate.

U.S. Representative Gene Taylor could not be reached for comment Saturday, but his press secretary Sharon Souther said the news about the budget would not come as a surprise to him.

"He has believed all along that the ammo plant is targeted for closure and that the biggest challenge now is to preserve the plant's funding for 1990," Souther said.

Taylor was on the Coast Friday and has not had an opportunity to view the closings list, but the unofficial word from Congressman G.V. "Sonny" Montgomery's office has it the plant is on the list, Souther said.

The Army announced in 1988 that the plant, operated by private contractor Mason Chamberlain Inc., had been slated for closure by 1992.

Taylor visited the munitions plant last week urging employees to write letters to the President in an effort to keep the plant open.

At that time Taylor said a $90 million appropriation that would keep the plant open through 1990 had yet to be approved by Congress.

The appropriation would buy time for Mason Chamberlain to pursue third party markets for the artillery shells produced at the plant, or develop another use for the facility, according to Taylor.

Clermont-Lakeshore becomes county's last fire district

BY DENA BISNETTE
The Clermont Harbor-Lakeshore Fire Protection District has been approved by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, becoming the ninth and last fire protection district in the county.

Fire protection districts are able to collect up to four mills in special property taxes each year, providing funding for their fire departments.

An area with a fire protection district also becomes eligible, after meeting some additional training and equipment standards, for a more favorable insurance rating from the State Rating Bureau, meaning that residents in general pay lower premiums.

"I congratulate them on coming through with this. We are well ahead of the majority of counties in the state," County Fire Services Coordinator Jay Marsh stated late Friday after having returned from a regional meeting of fire service

Former supervisor files law suit against Slidell

BY D.C. HARVILL
A former Hancock County supervisor who was arrested on drug charges in Slidell last year has filed suit against that city saying he was wrongfully arrested.

The $2 million, federal law suit filed by Gerald L. (Jerry) Ladner, 50, names Slidell Mayor Sam Caruso, the Slidell Police Department, Chief Max V. Rodriguez and auxiliary officer David Steece as defendants.

Ladner, a jewelry salesman, said he was arrested shortly after midnight on Feb. 19 after being stopped by Steece and another officer on Guase Road. According to Ladner, he had just left Ramada Inn, where he had been displaying jewelry, when he was stopped.

Ladner said he stopped at a stop sign and waited for an "old car" to drive through it. When the car did not move he drove through.

"He pulled out behind me with a blue light on and a police car came out from a service station," Ladner said.

When he stopped his van,

Ladner was greeted by a uniformed officer and a "guy in jeans and an old shirt with a badge," he said.

According to Ladner the men asked to look in the van and he signed a release to let them search the vehicle.

"I told them, if they were looking for drugs, I didn't care. But I wanted them to understand about my jewelry," he said.

When the man in jeans went to the passenger side of the van he reached under the seat and "came out with a blue bag."

"They said the stuff in the bag was cocaine. I would have to take their word for it because I don't fool with it and I don't associate with people who do," Ladner said.

A passenger in the van said Steece reached under the seat with both hands and immediately withdrew the bag, Ladner said.

"I had all kinds of junk under that seat; there is no way anyone could have reached under there and found anything without pulling all that stuff out," he said.

Ladner was booked with possession of cocaine, running a stop sign, running a stoplight and driving with an expired license plate. He was released later that day on an $8,000 bond.

The cocaine charge was dropped by the district attorney's office and the other charges were later thrown out by a judge.

Ladner, a member of the executive board for the Republican Party in Waveland and the Hancock County Soil and Water Conservation Commission, said he lost customers as a result of his being arrested.

Steece, Ladner said, should not be allowed to carry a gun and badge.

"We've got to get this man off the street. Who knows how many innocent people are jail because of him. If I hadn't had the friends I had and people who knew me, I could have served 20 years," Ladner said.

The suit states that Steece misused his power as a policeman, that his search of the van was illegal, that Ladner was wrongfully arrested and imprisoned and that his civil liberties were violated.

Local bingos continuing pending state's orders

BY DENA BISNETTE
Although bingo games have shut down in several locations across the state, including neighboring Pearl River County, Hancock County Sheriff Ronald Peterson is allowing games to continue until he receives specific instructions from the state.

"I've received several calls from nonprofit organizations, including Knights of Columbus and Our Lady of the Gulf (Catholic Church)," said Peterson Friday. "They've been asking me if it's still okay to play bingo."

"As far as I'm concerned it is. We haven't gotten anything official," he explained.

Wetlands could dampen industrial development

BY D.C. HARVILL
The new emphasis on preservation of the nation's wetlands may prove to be a thorn in the side of industrial development at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

At a special meeting Wednesday, the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission were given a presentation by engineers Carlos Cordon and Dick Murley on the presence of wetlands at Port Bienville Industrial Park in Southwestern.

Jurisdictional wetlands do not necessarily contain standing water, according to Murley. They are categorized by hydric soils (soils that hold water), hydrology (drainage) and plant life.

According to the engineers, before construction can be done on jurisdictional wetlands a permit must be granted by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

The permit process takes from 90 to 120 days "if there is no public protest," Port and Harbor Director Harold "Buz" Olsen said.

The wetlands issue came up earlier this month regarding

Armed robber hits Indy's

A burger, fries and cold cash

BY D.C. HARVILL
Waveland Police are investigating the armed robbery Friday of a Waveland fast food restaurant.

The department recieved a call shortly after 12:30 a.m. that the Indy's Hamburgers in front of Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center had been robbed at gunpoint, according to Waveland Police Chief Donald Dorn.

When officers arrived, relief manager Judy Walker told them that shortly after one of her employees had left there was a knock at the rear door. Apparently thinking the employee had returned, she opened the door and was confronted by a man with a gun, wearing a stocking over his head, Dorn said.

The gunman demanded that she open the safe and, picking up a bag demanded that she put money in it. He then had her lie on the floor and count. After the assailant left, Walker called her boss in Biloxi, who called the police, according to the chief.

The gunman, described as being six feet tall, with stocking over his head and wearing black gloves, escaped with an undetermined amount of cash, Dorn said.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
 Caire

"Superbowl Specials" at special savings for Super Bowl Sunday and afterwards beckon from the aisles and counters of our area supermarkets just now, just waiting for you to snap them up!

And, if you're not in the mood to stir from the TV set to feed the hungry armchair athletes, just stop by the deli departments, where there are party platters and all sorts of "fix-ins"—or assemble a platter of cold cuts and cheeses and what have you, and don't forget the crackers and chips and dips and spreads and all that!

Whatever your game plan, and your plans for the following days, you'll find bargains to suit your particular needs and your budget. If you've a big crowd coming over this or another day, you can't go wrong with a whole ham (average 19 to 23 pounds) at super savings at Winn-Dixie; and if all that ham is a "bit much" for you, shank portions are on special also.

Some years ago, my sister-in-law and I used to buy a whole ham together (when our budgets permitted such largesse) and share it. Our friendly neighborhood butcher cut the ham for us, and we took "turn and turn about" on the shank portion and the butt portion, a system which worked very well for us, and one which I still use with friends from time to time.

And, if you want a smaller ham, you won't go wrong with a whole boneless ham (5 to 7 pounds average) from Jitney Jungle. At any rate, I like to score my ham, spread a mixture of brown sugar and mustard over, dot with cloves, garnish with canned pineapple slices, and bake to a turn, basting liberally with burgundy wine along the way, or with orange juice or cola if you prefer.

With a ham on the buffet table, along with assorted breads and rolls, and mayonnaise, mustard and various other spreads, and condiments, you've scored a lot of points, and with ease!

And for other additions, make up a tasty potato salad (potatoes are specially priced at Winn-Dixie and National.) Or a pot of baked beans (scout those canned vegetable sales at Jitney Jungle and Winn-Dixie for instance.)

Another excellent choice: Jitney Jungle offers whole picnic shoulder roasts averaging six to eight pounds, as well as boneless pork loins. Also, Winn-Dixie offers whole Boston

Butts. Delchamps also has pork loins and chops.

And, from the beef corral, National's blade cut chuck roasts, bone-in, along with their center cut chuck roasts, are a special savings item. I like to buy a good-sized blade chuck, then divide it according to my needs. I see if I can't get a steak from the more tender part, cut off some for stew meat, and keep the center for a pot roast. I'm cooking up an:

ITALIAN STYLE POT ROAST

1 chuck roast, 3 or 4 lbs., more if you wish Garlic
 4 Tblsp. olive oil
 2 large onions, sliced
 1 Bay leaf
 1/2 tsp. thyme
 Pepper, salt to your taste
 Sprig of parsley
 1/2 cup tomato puree or sauce
 1/2 cup stock (or water and bouillon cube)

Stud the meat with slivers of garlic, using two cloves for a 4-pound roast. Sear in the olive oil until nicely browned.

Add the sliced onions, bay leaf, thyme, pepper and salt, parsley, tomato puree or sauce, and the stock or bouillon from the water and bouillon cube. Cover and simmer for 25 minutes per pound or until tender—tender enough to cut easily, but not stringy and mushy. If liquid cooks away, add a little more as needed. (Four to six servings)—from The Fireside Cookbook by James Beard.

Sometimes, I cook halved potatoes, carrots and onions along with a pot roast, in the same pot, for a delicious combination. And, speaking of potatoes, if you're doing one of the hams or roasts, pork or beef and so on, try this:

POTATOES ANNA

(Simple, but makes a good dish, with eye appeal)

Peel and slice thinly four large potatoes for six medium-sized ones. Place a layer of sliced potatoes evenly on the bottom of a well-buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with pepper and salt, and dot with butter. Add another layer of potatoes, repeating the process until you've used up all the potato slices.

Dot the top liberally with butter and bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 40 to 50 minutes or until potatoes are tender when tested with a toothpick. Before serving, invert the potatoes on a hot plate so that the nicely browned and deliciously crusty potatoes on the bottom will come out on top! (Six servings)

With the special savings on iceberg lettuce at Winn-Dixie you can mix up a good green salad. Pick up some of the fresh broccoli on special at National and Delchamps, blanch quickly or leave raw, and add florets to the salad bowl, along with crisp celery (super buy at National) and carrots from Jitney Jungle, onions on special at Delchamps, and whatever else you want to toss in, and you'll have a Super Salad Bowl with your choices of dressings!

And, speaking of celery, there are other ways to enjoy celery than just plain or stuffed with cheese spread and so on, for a tasty vegetable dish, try:

CELERY AMANDINE

4 cups diagonally sliced celery
 2 Tblsp. butter
 1/2 cup slivered, blanched almonds
 1/8 tsp. garlic powder

1 Tblsp. chicken-seasoned stock (or granules or bouillon)
 2 tsp. minced onion
 2 Tblsp. dry white wine (optional)

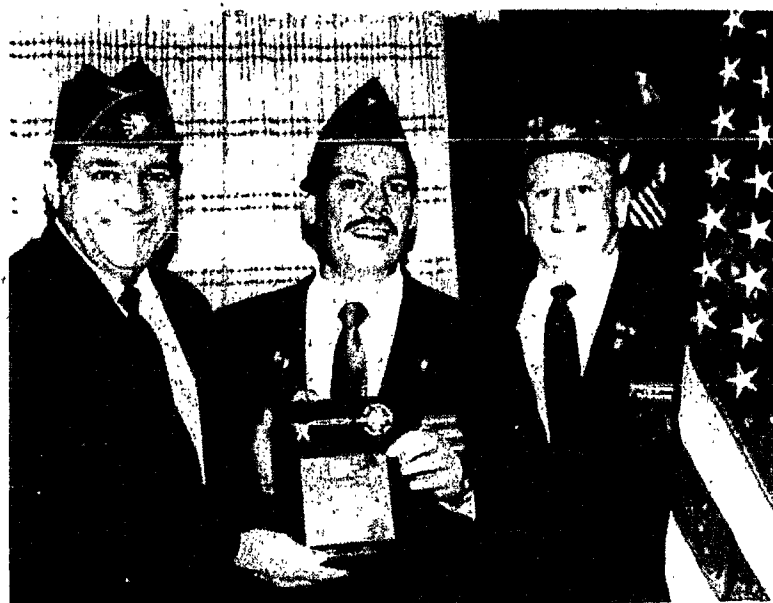

1 tsp. chopped parsley
 Pepper, salt to taste
 Use the large, outer green ribs, and slice 1/4-inch thick diagonally. Rinse in cold water. Melt a tablespoon of butter in a pan, add almonds and cook until brown, stirring frequently and taking care not to burn the almonds.

In a larger frypan or saute-pan, melt remaining butter. Add the celery, sprinkle with seasonings, and add remaining ingredients. Cover and cook over low heat, turning celery several times with a pancake turner. Cook just until celery is crisp-tender, say 10 minutes. Add the wine (if using), and toasted almonds, and cook two or three minutes longer. Sprinkle with additional chopped parsley and serve at once. (Six servings)—from The Spice Islands Cookbook.

Weight loss is simple arithmetic

It's that time of year again. You have made your annual New Year's resolution to lose those unwanted pounds. A new U.S. Department of Agriculture study sheds some light on why so many dieters lose the first few pounds with ease and then struggle, often in vain, to lose the rest.

The reason is because their calorie intake is not decreasing along with their weight.

The popular premise is that a person's metabolism slows down in response to fewer calories. In the last two years, some studies have shown that the body adapts to a reduction in calories by turning down its metabolic rate as we would turn down a thermostat to save energy.

And, they suggest that chronic dieting contributes to this energy-saving phenomenon. But the USDA study and another similar study recently published do not support this. Study results show that if you continue to reduce calories, you will continue to lose weight. For example, when people lose 10 percent of their body weight, they need about 10 percent fewer calories to remain at the new weight.

If they want to lose more, they have to continue reducing their food intake to the number of calories necessary to maintain their target weight. In other words, if you want to weigh 160 pounds, you have to eat like a 160-pounder.

Exercise added to a weight-loss program reduces the number of calories people have to cut. It also helps dieters retain lean muscle tissue as they lose unwanted fat.

USDA researchers reason that weight-loss slows down or stops altogether because people begin to eat more than they think they're eating the longer they're on a diet. Based on experience, the researchers believe people underestimate the number of calories they consume from food.

Boating skills, seamanship classes offered by Flotilla 33

The Bay-Waveland Flotilla No. 33 of the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary plans a public education class on "Boating Skills and Seamanship."

For seven nights starting at 7 p.m. on Feb. 12, class will be held each Monday through April 2. These classes will be taught at the Diamondhead Community Center.

Thirteen major subjects will be covered, The Safe Way to Boating Enjoyment, Boating Language and Trailering, Boat Handling, Legal Requirements, Rules of the Road and Aids to Navigation.

Also, Piloting, Marine Machines, Marlinspike Seamanship, Sailing, Weather, Radio Telephone and Locks and Dams.

Completion of the course makes it possible for all to better enjoy their boating experiences, and to do this in a safe manner.

Since the course and text book are strictly in accordance with Coast Guard practices, completion can be the first step toward application for membership in the Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Hancock Bank to sponsor annual Economic Symposium

Hancock Bank will hold its 24th annual Economic Symposium on Tuesday, Feb. 20 from 9 a.m. to noon at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum Convention Center.

Four guest speakers, selected on behalf of their knowledge and commitment to the development of commerce and industry in the coastal area, will be featured. They represent organizations in Jackson, Harrison and Pearl River counties. Speakers and their topics are: John T. Dillon, executive vice president of International Paper Company, "Challenges Confronting Manufacturing in the '90s."

Roy S. Estess, NASA director of the John C. Stennis Space Center, "NASA and its Impact on the Gulf Coast."

David A. Jones, president and chief executive officer of The Regina Company, "The Regina Story...and What it Means to Mississippi, Plus a Look at the 1990 Floorcare and Consumer Products Industries;" and

Dr. Loren C. Scott, chairman and professor of economics at Louisiana State University, "Growing and Declining Industries in Mississippi in the '90s."

Since 1966, Hancock Bank has provided these forums as a means of informing the community of the status of business and industry in the coastal area. The 1990 symposium expects to draw a crowd of 1,000 citizens.

Bingo

Among the organizations relying heavily on bingo for fundraising here are churches and veterans' groups.

"I still feel the attorney general is targeting for-profit bingo," said Peterson, citing a now controversial provision the state legislature passed several years ago to allow bingo for non-profit purposes only.

Although the state senate bill asking for a vote on a proposed state lottery is dead now and a stand-alone bingo bill has also met with a poor reception from many senators, Peterson said, he still expects some action to change the bingo rules from the state house of representatives—and he expects it before this term of the legislature is over.

"From my understanding, another bill, something through the house, has been introduced. I believe it is by two representatives from Harrison County," he said.

"I am telling people it is all right to play bingo until we get official word from the attorney general, and I've discussed it with District Attorney Cono Caranna and he agrees."

"Personally, I still think it's all a political deal designed to get the lottery passed. I think the attorney general is just putting pressure on local legislators so they have to approve the lottery to be able to play bingo."

Peterson is one of those who feels the lottery should be a decision made by a vote of the public.

"If it passes, it passes; if it fails, it's obvious people in Mississippi don't want it," the sheriff said.

He praised nonprofit organizations for their concern regarding the possibility of breaking the law, but explained that people will probably continue playing bingo somewhere because "we were playing bingo here even before it was legal. We've been playing bingo here for a hundred years."

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

In a lifetime there are many joys celebrated, mixed with sorrows along the journey.

There are many worries throughout a lifetime such as a place to stay, food to eat, clothing to wear, etc.

I feel, and I am sure many others feel the same way, that when a person dies his or her remains, when placed in a tomb or buried, should be respected.

It seems some idiots find it hard to understand that relatives of the departed do not want anyone tampering with the grave sites of their loved ones.

Over the years, I have been to cemeteries across the county where vandalism has occurred and have never seen people in such a rage, and rightly so.

Apparently it is hard for a few to understand the importance of not tampering with the "sacred grounds" of the dead.

Recently, vandals struck at the Waveland Cemetery, smashing vases and headstone decorations.

I hope the idiot or idiots who did the vandalism are apprehended and receive their just reward.

I would love to be a judge issuing the sentence in such a case.

Today is Super Bowl Sunday and the City of New Orleans is really hopping.

The Denver Broncos and San Francisco 49ers both have a lot of supporters in New Orleans.

One thing is for sure, many fans will not be as happy as the final whistle blows later this afternoon to end to Super Bowl game.

It appears the 49ers are favored in all circles and will probably win the game, yet, the Broncos have a good chance in playing the role of a spoiler.

The best picture I can see from the big game is the dollars it will leave in circulation, trickling down to local merchants.

I wish both the Broncos and 49ers good luck in the game today.

The city of New Orleans will get a lot of exposure from the game, because it probably will be viewed by the most people, around the world, ever to see a Super Bowl.

I will be among the millions watching the Super Bowl on television.

Redfish have been receiving a lot of publicity in recent years and have become a big concern for both sport and commercial fishermen.

The Bureau of Marine Resources is sponsoring three public meetings this week to discuss redfish, one of which will be held in Hancock County.

The special hearing will be held on Thursday, February 1, 7 p.m. in the Hancock County Courthouse.

Research is being conducted by the Gulf Coast Research Lab on redfish and it appears the escapement rate to insure a healthy redfish population is not what it should be.

Redfish were at one time very plentiful in the waters of the Gulf of Mexico, but over fishing in recent years have drastically reduced their numbers.

The big demand for blackened redfish has helped to reduce redfish numbers.

Tighter restrictions on both commercial and recreational redfishing will be discussed at the meetings.

I hope those who are concerned will attend Thursday night's meeting.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Volunteer firefighters commended for prompt action in saving home

To the Editor:

Our summer home in Pearlington's Belle Isle Subdivision was struck by lightning on Saturday, Jan. 20 at approximately 4:08 p.m.

Thanks to the West Hancock County Volunteer Fire Department and neighboring friends, we were able to salvage our home.

We appreciate everything these people have done for us and would like to give the recognition they deserve. Within the fire department, the following people responded to the call: Danny Mitchell, Doug Sonnier, Elliot Dawsey, Tony Sciacca, Shon Autry, Windy Autry, Linda Autry, Gary West, Kenneth White and Regina White.

Our family lives in the new Orleans area and it feels good to know there are fine people like the people we have just mentioned to be there in time of need.

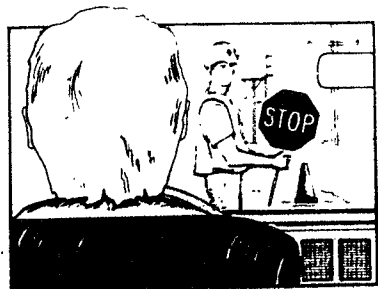

They were quick to respond to the call and in doing so, there was not as much damage to our home as we had expected. Of course, we had expected and were prepared for the worst.

We would like to present a donation to these people in the amount of $25, so they may continue to receive the education and training to further their knowledge in helping others the way they have done for us.

We are hoping others feel the same way we do and accept this challenge to meet some kind of donation, for they may have to do this for you. Again, we would like to express our sincere thanks and gratitude to all these people who have helped in our emergency situation. We'll never be able to repay them.

A lot of us just take our fire department for granted until something like this happens.

House bill would raise salaries of state employees

State employees would receive a minimum pay raise of $125 a month, or an annual $1,500 increase, under a salary plan adopted by the House of Representatives during the past week.

The bill also provides for realignment of certain salaries as recommended by the State Personnel Board under the state's Variable Compensation Plan, a system developed in 1981 to improve the method of establishing salaries of state personnel and try to keep them competitive with private business and adjacent states.

Overall, the bill would mean around $73 million in higher salaries from all sources including $35 million from the state's general fund. Recommended by the Appropriations Committee, the measure was a revised version of an earlier Senate proposal. Both chambers must agree on the final version before the bill becomes law.

The salary increase was among several bills winning House approval during the third week of the 1990 session as committee work continued to draw most of the attention.

The 90-day session is deliberately structured to allow time in the opening weeks for the preparation of bills and amendments, public hearings on various issues, and committee work. An increase in floor action is expected as bills are reported by the committees and reach the full house for consideration.

State employees got no raises in 1989 and a salary hike was considered a high priority this year. The House plan provides that the 27,000 worker under the state personnel system would get raises of at least $125 a month in the coming fiscal year. The Senate bill called for an increase of 5 percent or $75 a month, whichever is greater.

Both versions included a salary realignment for thousands of employees including nurses, correctional officers, and other job classifications where it has been determined that higher pay is necessary to bring them up to a competitive level.

While legislators generally agree a pay raise for state employees is overdue, there are sharply opposing views on the size of the increase and how it should be handled. The House rejected an amendment calling for an across-the-board $200 monthly raise and no realignment.

Another hotly debated bill approved by the House was aimed at tightening laws involving road-hunting. The bill would make it unlawful to possess a loaded gun on any public road, highway or right-of-way while hunting on foot or in a vehicle during the open gun seasons on deer. Violators could be fined from $10 to $500 and/or sent to the county jail for a term of 60 days up to six months.

The bill defines "right-of-way" to mean 100 feet on either side from the center of a public street, road, highway or railroad. The legislation does not apply to handguns or shotguns with ammunition smaller than buckshot or slug, and a "loaded" gun means a cartridge or shell is in the barrel, chamber or magazine or in a clip, magazine or retainer attached to the firearm.

In other action, the House

Bringing home space exploration

January's flight of Columbia marked the 33rd launch of the space shuttle and watching it, I felt the same exhilaration as if it were the first.

Our scientists are awaiting the opportunity to explore the rich treasure of experiments contained in the satellite which Columbia plucked from a six-year orbit, along with the results of medical and technological tests performed on board the shuttle.

Will these tests help our farmers and bolster our food supply? Will they bring new answers to protecting the environment? Will they lead to new treatments for cancer or provide a cure for AIDS? The opportunities are real, and the results from space exploration already are enriching our lives.

Space exploration has captured the imaginations of Americans, thanks to the support of the federal government. But now it's time to encourage America's entrepreneurs—perhaps our greatest natural resource—to bring their energies and imaginations to this seemingly limitless frontier.

In 1984 the Congress amended the Space Act, directing NASA to "...seek and encourage, to the maximum extent possible, the fullest commercial use of space."

Toward this end, Congress grouped commercial space activities into four general areas: space transportation; information services such as communications, navigation and remote sensing; new products and services, such as those associated with materials processing in space; and, privately provided space infrastructure.

Looking at our own futuristic John C. Stennis Space Center in Bay St. Louis, I determined that Mississippi was the perfect launching pad for this space mandate. With the cooperation of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Small Business Administration, we have obtained $1 million in pilot funding to initiate the Space Technology Small Business Initiative in Missisissippi over the next three years.

My goal for this initiative is to create jobs and promote economic development by stimulating small business growth through commercial applications of space technology. The program is under the management of DARKAT, Inc., itself a small business management consulting firm.

Our Space Technology Small Business Initiative will provide outreach activities intended to encourage and assist the small business community to develop opportunities at NASA based on the commercial use of space technology. Mississippi's pilot program will serve to analyze the market potential for our small business and their innovations and will coordinate market development efforts with federal, state and local agencies.

Mississippian Fred Sullivan heads DARKAT, Inc. and is overseeing our space initiative. If your business is interested in participating, call him at 601-867-2522.

I believe that our experience in improving the small business commercial impact of this innovative research program with NASA, through this pilot project, also will provide a model for similar applications of small business programs within the Defense Department and other federal agencies.

These small business contracts and grants can be a strong stimulant to the development of a diversified small business base that we need in Mississippi to produce a broader and more stable job market. Growth of high-tech industry in Mississippi will provide employment opportunities at home for many of our university graduates who now migrate out of state to find jobs.

It is Mississippi innovation that has turned catfish into an agricultural commodity. That same energy and imagination offer the boost America needs to exploit the commercial opportunities of our space program and propel it into the 21st Century.

Lack of consistency could be the problem

Isn't it funny that people will enforce some rules and ignore others? And, how they'll take something that has existed for 50 or 100 years and try to change it?

I mean, let's look at the bingo controversy.

What strikes me funny about the bingo deal is that, if some people contend that the state constitution prohibits all games of chance and some don't think bingo fits into that prohibition, why wait until now to ask questions? I mean, this is the Constitution of 1890 we're talking about, isn't it?

For that matter, if people constantly ignore the same traffic signal on the same corner, and the police know about it and suddenly decide to enforce it, are people going to say, "Well, nobody ever bothered about it before?" You can be sure they will.

It's like letting a pet sleep in your bed one night because you're cold and then reprimanding him when he tries it again. It's like letting a little kid skip eating his greens one night when you don't feel like fighting with him and then forcing him to eat them the next time they're served.

All this reminds me of something I didn't discover until the second time I went to University of Southern Mississippi at Hattiesburg--the one-way streets are not consistent.

The first time I lived on that campus, I had no car, so it came as a surprise to me the second time to find that the one-way streets routing people past the football stadium were changed every time the season changed.

The idea was to route people past Reed Green Coliseum for the basketball season.

That may make sense on a college campus, but it brings a storm of protest when it's done in a town. There's usually a small but vocal faction that asks for the change in current rules and a big bunch of people protesting that nobody ever tried to make the street one-way before.

And, the way people in general pay attention only to what directly affects them, it's not really likely the protest will occur until the enforcement is already approved by the authorities involved.

Lack of consistency could be the problem in all of the above cases. Don't you agree?

What I've found is that people want consistency. It's not only necessary when you're training pets or children, because most adults seem to want it too.

Changing the rules in the middle of a game confuses children and pets. They don't know what you want. Well, the difference I see in adults is that they don't want to admit to being confused.

Some of them, like me, have become resigned to chaos in certain situations and have replaced their confusion with something that is just as difficult to deal with--frustration.

I'd rather be confused than frustrated because with confusion there's at least a chance that I can straighten everything out once I get a little information.

I have one particular situation in my life just now where the only consistency is inconsistency. And, not being the God-in-charge-of-all, I have no control over it--it's the amount of news happening each week.

There are a few people who actually enjoy inconsistency in the name of spontaneity, but even they can't stand it for long.

The solution is easy to state: make the rules and let them stay that way until there is a need to change. Make enforcement consistent. Don't make a rule you plan to ignore.

As with anything else, it's easy to say, but it's not easy to do at all because all people are not alike. We go to great lengths not to be.

But we can try to make life easier for ourselves and others, and consistency helps.

Grand jury will hear insurance scam case

A Louisiana man accused of posing as Frank Lombardo Jr. for an insurance policy physical examination has been bound over to the grand jury.

Winfield A. "Winnie" Strehle III, 31, of Harahan was bound over Wednesday after a preliminary hearing.

Strehle allegedly took the exam for a $100,000 life insurance policy taken out in late 1984 on Lombardo, whose charred body was found in his burnt out home on McDonald Lane in Bay St. Louis on Christmas Day 1985. He had been shot in the chest and the head.

Lombardo's wife and daughter, Fran Lombardo and Mari Lombardo, have been charged with murder in his death. The duo collected $200,000 on the policy which contained a double indemnity clause.

GCCAA appeals to county for help in providing GEDs

The GED program last year provided training for 40 people, half of whom were tested and received their high school equivalency certificate by the end of the year. About $19,500 was put into that particular program for Hancock County.

The low income home energy assistance program provides a one-month stipend to pay for heating and cooling for eligible households. According to the GCCAA report, 609 people were given this particular type of assistance, which totalled $75,786.

A popular program, Moffett said, is home weatherization, in which energy-saving measures including weather stripping and more energy-efficient windows and doors are installed. Last year, 23 homes in the county were weatherized at a cost of $21,782.

Of the 60 people who lived in those homes, 14 were age 60 or older, qualifying as elderly under the program's guidelines.

The emergency homeless program the agency operates costs $5,213, but additional staff time which would have cost an excess of another $5,000 was donated by GCCAA caseworkers. The program helped 43 families find permanent shelter and provided follow-ups to assure that their homeless situation does not reoccur.

The agency also makes referrals to other organizations who provide services it can not provide.

The report also stated that for every dollar contributed by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the agency generated 19 more dollars in 1989.

Moffett said one of the programs GCCAA does not have funded for 1990 is the GED program.

"We were more active trying to get funds for some of the other things, and then didn't get any money for GED," he said.

Although the statistics regarding last year's GED work are lower than some of the other programs because GCCAA was not the only group providing GED training and testing, it is still one of the most popular ones GCCAA has provided.

"We are still getting numerous inquiries about it. We would like to reinstate it because the demand is still there," he explained, asking the board to provide some assistance if possible.

The supervisors meet again at 9 a.m. Feb. 5.

Pedestrian struck by car

BY DENA BISNETTE
Thurman Deschamp, 49, of Fenton, was killed when he was hit by a vehicle at about 6:20 p.m. Wednesday.

The vehicle, driven by Jimmy Ramsey of Wilmington, N.C., was traveling east on Kiln-Delisle Road at the intersection of Bayou Coco Cemetery Road when the accident occurred, Hancock County Sheriff's Department Investigator Nathan Hoda said.

Hoda said, Deschamp was probably walking home when he was struck by Ramsey's vehicle near the intersection.

The investigator said the death, which occurred in the dark just after rain started falling, is being considered as an accident and Ramsey has not been charged with anything.

Deputy Deron Cuevas found Deschamp dead at the scene when he responded to the call. Ramsey had stopped another driver passing by and asked him to call law enforcement.

Mobile Medic Ambulance Service was summoned, as well as Hancock County Coroner Harold Stiglet, who pronounced Deschamp dead.

Volunteers from Kiln Fire Department also responded, Hoda added.

voted to reenact laws creating the Workers' Compensation Commission and Department of Insurance, both slated to expire in 1990 unless extended.

Another bill was approved to continue the widely acclaimed Farm Mediation Program, initiated in 1987 to assist financially troubled farmers by setting up a voluntary debt-mediation plan with the State Agriculture Department.

Alternative proposals to fund education were a topic of continuing concern among many lawmakers following the Senate's rejection of the state lottery amendment sought by the Governor. Meanwhile, committees worked on measures ranging from a proposed Agricultural Strategic Planning Institute to a landlord-tenant rights bill to a prison industries plan.

Special House committees were named to handle drug abuse legislation and the crucial problem of hazardous waste disposal.

The growing stack of bills sent to the calendar by the end of the past week included proposals to increase the Public Service Commission from three to five members; prohibit release of violent offenders from state correctional facilities to attend athletic, social, political or recreational events; and reenact a law giving the Governor emergency powers to reduce prison crowding under certain conditions.

Raiders extend record

Coast Episcopal High School played a series of basketball games this past weekend.

On Friday, Jan. 19, CEHS defeated Pine Hills Academy from Gloster 49-38. Pine Hills defeated CEHS earlier in the year 69-33. The Raiders are ranked 1 and 2 in the Mississippi Private School Association.

The leading scorer for the Raiders was senior Jamie White with 14 points. Kell will by senior Billy Guice with 13. Other scorers were sophomore Chris Painter, eight points, senior Bruce Hull, six; freshman Tyrone Jones, six; and sophomore Dave Hagan, two.

On Saturday, Jan. 20, the Raiders played number 1 ranked Trinity Episcopal Day School from Natchez, losing 61-40.

High scorer for CEHS was again Jamie White with 13 points. Other scorers were Jones, nine; Hull, six; sophomore Paul Bernadas, six; Hagan, four; and Guice, two.

This past Tuesday night, Coast Episcopal defeated Bible Baptist of Gulfport 61-40.

Three players scored in double digits. White, 16; Guice, 14; and Hull, 12. Other scorers were Jones, nine; Painter, nine; Covode, two; and Bernadas, two.

"The game against Bible Baptist may have been our best offensive effort this season," said Hutchison. "All five starters played well."

The Raiders now have a 16-12 record, and play their next home game Tuesday, Jan. 30 against Columbia Academy. Tipoff in the girls' game is 6 p.m., and the boys play at 7 p.m. in the CEHS gym on Espy Avenue.

Lady Raiders defeat Bible Baptist

The Coast Episcopal High School Lady Raiders defeated Bible Baptist of Gulfport 25-21 last Tuesday night.

The leading scorer was senior Rebecca Thompson with 12 points. Other scorers were freshman Megan Urmann, 20, and Missy Mize, two. Junior Katherine Parsell, four, and eighth grader Miriam Salloum, two.

The lead changed hands frequently in the fourth quarter when the Lady Raiders took control and completely shut down the Baptists' offense.

Coach Becky Montgomery said, "The Lady Raiders are a very tight team and every game, whether we win or lose, is a learning experience for the girls."

CEHS plays at home Tuesday against Columbia Academy, and tipoff is at 6 p.m.

Recycle kitchen waste

Attention! Face front! We have a revolution that started in the kitchens. You know that. Look at the directions for preparing packaged foods. That is, read them if your eyesight is good. But the point is, hurry up! Allow from three to five minutes in the microwave for your meal.

Just to show you how out-of-date most cookbooks are, just try to find a good recipe for bread pudding. Bread pudding was once considered a way to be conservative. It used otherwise wasted bread as well as bits and pieces of food taking up space in your fridge. It was good, too. Had all sorts of surprises such as raisins, prunes, nuts, maybe a fig preserve or two, and some applesauce.

Bread pudding made conservation a joy. But you didn't make it in three minutes. You beat the eggs, added the cream and butter, etc. Have you in your cookbooks a good microwave recipe for bread pudding?

And please don't pour that grease down the drain. First thing you know, that drain will look like your cholesterol count and you will require the services of a plumber whose fees are as high as those of a doctor, and maybe he is not as good. I don't know, but don't do it.

And don't put all that garbage down the waste disposal. Do not dispose of your waste! What to do with it?

Well, it's for the birds, the squirrels and the roaming rabbits. They, too, eat and are more important to our balance with nature than the sea turtles. What they don't eat will make a great addition to the compost pile. Mixed with a bit of dirt or leaves it decomposes very rapidly and without odor.

We will talk about wildlife and how to attract it in a column soon.

Wildlife Heritage Fund seeks tax donations

Once again it is time for Mississippi taxpayers receiving a refund to consider making a donation to the state's nongame wildlife program.

Now in its fourth year, Mississippi's income tax refund for nongame has generated more than $160,000 for the state's Wildlife Heritage Program.

Tax refund dollars have sponsored the reintroduction of some 70 bald eagles to the state in hopes of establishing a breeding population in their historic range.

Refund donations have gone to produce educational audio tapes of Mississippi bird and frog songs, in addition to more than 30 research projects on some of the state's rarest species.

"The money received through Mississippi's income tax donations is by far the largest part of all funding available for work with nongame wildlife in our state," Wildlife Heritage Director Bill Quisenberry said.

"Without these dollars, needed projects and programs will go undone."

Quisenberry said all contributions are tax deductible on next year's taxes.

Mississippi taxpayers receiving a refund on state taxes should look for the symbol of the swallow-tailed kite on line 24 of their tax form. Simply write in the amount you wish to donate.

Taxpayers may donate all or part of their refund, as long as the amount is at least $1.

If you do not receive a tax refund, but wish to contribute to the state's nongame program, send your donation directly to the Mississippi Wildlife Heritage Fund, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, MS 39205.

Hancock farmers apply land conservation plans

Conservation plans have been developed for 1.5 million acres of the state's highly erodible cropland, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Soil Conservation Service reported.

"Our goal was to have all plans done by Dec. 31, the deadline for farmers who want them and want to stay eligible for USDA program benefits," said SCS State Conservationist L. Pete Heard. "We stayed on target with that goal."

"We now have the biggest conservation effort in history ahead of us," Heard said. "Over the next five years, farmers will be carrying out these plans under the time table they've agreed upon, with all work to be done by Dec. 31, 1994."

The conservation provisions in the Food Security Act of 1985 for the first time linked farmers' eligibility for USDA farm program benefits to their conservation activities.

Farmers must be actively applying a conservation plan on their highly erodible fields by the beginning of calendar year 1990, and have that plan fully implemented by Dec. 31, 1994, if they want to stay eligible for USDA farm program benefits.

Farmers in Hancock County have applied 30 percent of their conservation plans.

Heard commented, "We've been helping farmers to switch to conservation tillage for over two decades and install terraces and waterways for over five decades—but never on the scale that we anticipate in the next five years."

"We're working with farmers, contractors and their associations, and others in the private sector to find innovative and effective ways to tackle the conservation challenge and opportunity that lies ahead," Heard said.

Wetlands

property in the park being considered for purchase by a company named Calgon Carbon.

After being surveyed by a wetlands specialist, the property was determined to be 40 percent wetlands, according to Olsen.

"When I went out to the site with (the wetlands specialist) all I saw was a puddle here and there and I thought, 'this isn't going to be so bad,' but he starts pointing out all these plants that are supposed to indicate wetlands," Olsen said.

When the survey was finished almost half of the property matched the criteria for jurisdictional wetlands.

A "worst-case scenario" map with potential wetlands shaded in showed, that a large percentage of the park could be classified as wetlands and, as such, a permit would be required before development could take place.

The commission approved a recommendation made by the engineers that they meet with representatives from the federal agencies that administer the wetlands regulations and do a comprehensive survey of the park and adjacent property being considered for inclusion in the park.

The regulations are being overseen by the Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, National Marine Fisheries, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Soil Conservation Commission.

By identifying all wetlands in the park, the commission hopes to avoid having to call in wetlands specialists for every future prospective park tenant.

"The only advantage I can see is we can say, if you choose this site you have to have a permit," said Commission President Ronnie Artigues.

"It's just a matter of getting all those people down here around this table and hammering it out," Olsen said.

"I say get them down here and do it," said Artigues.

"I've a mind to go torch all those plans," said Olsen, disturbed at the potential loss of developable property in the park.

SECTION B

THE SEA COAST ECHO—SUNDAY, JANUARY 28, 1990-1B

Biloxi Diocese celebrates Catholic Schools Week

The Diocese of Biloxi Catholic School System celebrates Catholic Schools Week Jan. 28-Feb. 3. During this week of student pre-registration for the 1990-91 school session, the schools in the diocese rededicate themselves to their mission of "...making disciples through Christ centered education."

The Diocese of Biloxi offers 21 institutions of learning in southern Mississippi: one unit school, 13 elementary schools, four secondary schools, and three early childhood education programs.

These facilities spread east and west from Pascagoula-Moss Point to Bay St. Louis-Waveland along the southern edge of Mississippi and north as far as Laurel.

Catholic education began in southern Mississippi in 1852, and since then, the growth of the Catholic school system has kept pace with the growth of the population.

Mustard Seed Ministry

Former Bay St. Louis residents Ed and Ann Porter, far left and right, respectively, presented the results of their unique faith ministry with a concert by mentally and physically handicapped men. The Porters are house parents of a non-profit group care home in Theodore, Ala., which is supported by donations. For information, write The Mustard Seed, 5213 McDonald Rd., Theodore, AL 36582.

Bay Catholic establishes perpetual trust for educational excellence

The Bay Catholic Elementary School Board and Reverend Peter Mockler, pastor of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, have announced the establishment of an educational trust to prepare for the future of Catholic education in the Bay St. Louis area.

The income earned from this fund, which is called The Bay Catholic Elementary School Perpetual Trust, will be used to realize the school's commitment to the demands of educational excellence.

To meet this demand, the school board's plans for the trust income include attaining affordable tuition levels for children, and offering competitive salaries for teachers.

Principal Ann Allen said the trust fund will accept contribution at any time.

"Donations may be made to memorialize a deceased loved one, to mark special occasions such as anniversaries or birthdays, or for no other reason than to help us face today's crisis in Catholic education," she said.

Rev. Mockler added: "For more than 140 years, Catholic education in this area has nurtured the spiritual, moral and intellectual development of thousands of the Bay's young men and women.

"But to continue this mission requires adequate preparation for the challenges of the future. The trust is one avenue to help us meet that challenge."

To receive further information about Bay Catholic Elementary's educational trust, write the school at 301 South Second Street, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520 or call 467-5158.

Mississippi Baptists to convene in Jackson

Sharing the Christian faith will be the focus of a conference on evangelism, Jan. 29-31 at Broadmoor Baptist Church in Jackson.

The conference, sponsored by the Mississippi Baptist Convention Board, will feature two seminary professors, a state evangelism director, a Southern Baptist Home Mission Board evangelism consultant, two pastors, and a Mississippi evangelist.

The annual preaching meeting will have the theme, "So the Lost May Hear." It begins on Monday at 6:35 p.m. with a concert by the Mississippi Singing Churchmen, a male choir of about 100 ministers of music. The meeting concludes Wednesday at 11 a.m.

Reflections

On Life

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

Closet allies of the kingdom

Quaker Oats is proof positive that there are corporations out there which are secret allies of God's kingdom. Each of them has its own way of voicing approval and encouragement. Quaker Oats speaks simply of joining the kingdom: "the right thing to do."

In the world of computer software, Microsoft insists that the specific capabilities of the reign of God accomplish things which not even their equipment can bring about in the complex, rapidly changing scheme of life: "Making it all make sense."

Northwestern Mutual Life claims that there is an insurance in the kingdom which surpasses theirs to such an extent that, in the midst of our worst crisis, "Life can be beautiful."

Chevrolet pinpoints the ultimate wisdom of knowing that any investment, even the smallest, pays off in the reign of God: "How a small investment can pay off handsomely."

Lincoln-Mercury makes its pitch for using the kingdom as a dependable vehicle, no matter how rough the weather of life may be: "A sensible way to ride out a storm."

ICI would like to believe that they render services at least vaguely comparable to those rendered by the children of God's reign, who assure us: "Discover who we are, and you will think the world of us."

CNA tells us that the kingdom has a matchless blanket insurance policy for the covenant of marriage, for parenthood, work, school, church; in fact, "for all the commitments you make."

Full of admiration for the children of God's reign, Metropolitan Life lists the vital marks of a representative of that reign: "Eye on the future, full of good ideas, ready to listen, service with a smile, helping hand, concerned and caring."

Avis typified the corporations which are vying so desperately to emulate the zeal, dedication and energy put forth by the children of the kingdom: "We're trying harder than ever."

The Washington Post knows its way around well enough to identify one of the most basic characteristics of the kingdom of God: "Power Source."

New York Life advise us. "Get the most out of life." Specifically, they point us to membership in the kingdom, where it is easy to follow this advice: "You don't have to be a financial genius to get the most out of life."

Although they may smart at times because of criticism of their product, Benson and Hedges have no misgivings about what the reign of God can produce, "because quality matters."

IBM prides itself in being virtually the best in computer technology; yet, admits that God's kingdom stands alone in assembling people's lives: "Only one can put it all together."

Grudgingly, American Express owns up to the fact that membership in God's reign is even more priceless than being a cardmember in their corporation: "Membership has its privileges."

The Glaucoma Foundation took their slogan directly from that of the children of the kingdom: "Dedicated to your vision of the future."

Dodge takes great pride in its bargains, but concedes that the reign of God exceeds the best that company can offer: "there's a great deal in it for you."

Out of sheer admiration for its power, Chevrolet tips us off about committing ourselves to the kingdom of God: "You're about to have a powerful change of heart."

Diamondhead Academy

By Louis Abrams

A first for Diamondhead Academy! The students will build a float for the Mardi Gras Land Parade which rolls Feb. 24. All students will volunteer to help make this the Number One float and return, if not a winner, a very successful participant.

A Yearbook Club has started with sixth grade students. It meets each Tuesday after school. This is an extension of a weekly newspaper being prepared by the English class where the students are studying journalism.

"Read, pass it on" is a program to enhance the students' reading of books outside of class. This is a part of the "World Book Partners in Excellence Reading Program." The students will solicit sponsors who willingly pay a set amount for each book read by that student. World Book Encyclopedia will match all donations toward a new set of encyclopedias.

Feb. 20 will be open house at Diamondhead Academy for all parents, especially parents of prospective students who wish to see the school.

Hancock County Historical Society

By Page Poolson

We can't help bragging! Secretary Patt Cucullu and husband Irwin Cucullu have dedicated themselves to hosting still another Pilgrimage this year. That makes twice for at least two of our members. Pardon our boastfulness but our cup is filled with sweet nectar. President Larry Heller's house on Main Street was also shown in 1987 and 1989.

The Cucullu home, on Citizen Street, will be open to the public on March 22, and we look forward to viewing it and the Cucullu antiques (a wealth of old world sturdiness and beauty) displayed there and handed down in Patt's family. They don't make 'em like that any more!

And thank goodness for the good people like Patt, Irwin and all the other selfless ones who continue to partake in these events and give us a special pleasure each year at this time.

The home was built in the 1860's as a single residence and cut in half about 1908. It boasts of an impressive collection of provocatively antique bottles. Thank you, Patt and Irwin for another year of pleasure!

The angels have touched us once again! Our club has grown in such a lovely fashion...wonderfully giving neighbors, sharing historical treasures with us...club members of the superb kind...sweet, helpful workers...goodies for the antique show...donors of mechanical equipment, such as the newly acquired computer, etc...the blessing of this column bestowed upon us by this (Sea Coast Echo) newspaper...the diligent officers, watching over us with love and affection...our new, internal newspaper, "The Historian," arriving in our mail-drops each and every month with a conglomerate of articles, special humor and historical columns, world puzzles, old news printings of 50, 75, 100 years ago, a delectable recipe, pictures of interest, our very own comic strip titled "Skipper" (beginning in March issue).

And now, the piece de resistance—our very own Mr. Charles Gray is about to become a well-known, revered celebrity in these here parts, (not that he isn't already, of course). Mr. Gray will be chatting, as he so eloquently does, on the subject of historical happenings.

Charles is busy these days, pounding out scripts for the upcoming series. Knowing Charles, we are certain of the spellbinding, amusing quality as he is a raconteur of the very best kind, and it will be well worth your time in "tuning in!"

The episodes will be launched on WBSL radio. Their entirety will be 15 minutes every Sunday morning. The starting date and time are not yet set, but we will inform you just as soon as we know, and then, make it a date not to miss it. I promise you a wonderfully enjoyable time!

New Orleans Museum of Art continues expansion; tells 1990 exhibitions

The New Orleans Museum of Art is progressing with the second stage of its Capital Campaign 2000 expansion and renovation with the initiation of asbestos removal from the building. This extensive project, begun in December, 1989 and continuing through September, 1990 follows the recent completion of a new roof on the central Isaac Delgado building and its two adjacent wings.

For the duration of the renovation and expansion, the museum's second-floor City Wing will be closed, thereby removing from view the Oriental, Oceanic and Contemporary Art collections, the Melvin P. Billups Gallery of Decorative Arts and the Clarence John Laughlin Gallery of Photography.

The expanded museum, scheduled to open in December, 1992, will double the amount of space in the aforementioned galleries and NOMA's permanent collection.

Although the second-floor City Wing will be closed, visitors to NOMA in 1990 still can look forward to a year of exciting and varied exhibitions, beginning with the major exhibition Rodin: Sculpture from the B. Gerald Cantor Collections, Feb. 2 to June 24;

Born by the River: Photographs by Kieth Calhoun and Chandra McCormick, Feb. 2 to March 11;

Robert Warrens Retrospective, Feb. 10 to April 1;

Robert Willson: Glass Sculpture, April 21 to June 10;

Diverse Images II (photography from NOMA's collection) Aug. 4 to Oct. 14;

Elvis Close-Up: Jay Levinton Photographs, Aug. 4 to Oct. 14;

Julio Sequeira: Images of Eden, Sept. 8 to Oct. 14; and Down River: Currents of Style in Louisiana Painting 1800-1950, Nov. 10 to Dec. 30.

Also, some of the most renowned features of the museum's permanent collection will remain on view, including: a group of works by 'French Impressionist Edgar Degas, who lived in New Orleans in 1871-72 and painted just 12 blocks from the museum;

The Samuel H. Kress Collection of Italian old master paintings;

Dutch and Flemish paintings of the 16th and 17th centuries; French paintings of the 17th and 18th centuries;

New Orleans' own sacred vessel, the 1938 Eucharistic Monstrance;

The Rosemonde E. and Emile Kuntz Rooms, choice examples of America's Decorative Arts heritage; the latter-Schlesinger Collection of Portrait Miniatures;

The Hyams Collection featuring paintings and sculpture by 19th-century French Salon, Barbizon School and Munich group artists;

And magnificent jeweled treasures created by Peter Carl Faberge', including three Imperial Easter Eggs which have been on loan for the prestigious Faberge' Imperial Eggs exhibition at the San Diego Museum of Art which will return to display at NOMA on Jan. 11.

More than $15 million of the $18 million goal for the museum expansion project already has been raised in the first public capital campaign in NOMA's 78-year history.

When completed, the expansion project will place NOMA among the top 25 percent of the nation's 140 largest and most important art museums, and will allow more of its collection, 70 percent of which is currently in storage, to be shown to the public.

The collection, the most significant in the Gulf South Region, now contains more than 32,000 objects worth nearly $200 million.

The announced addition to the 1911 Beaux Arts Central building, with its three adjacent wings added in 1971, will add 55,000 square feet of new space to the existing 73,000 square feet of facility to be renovated.

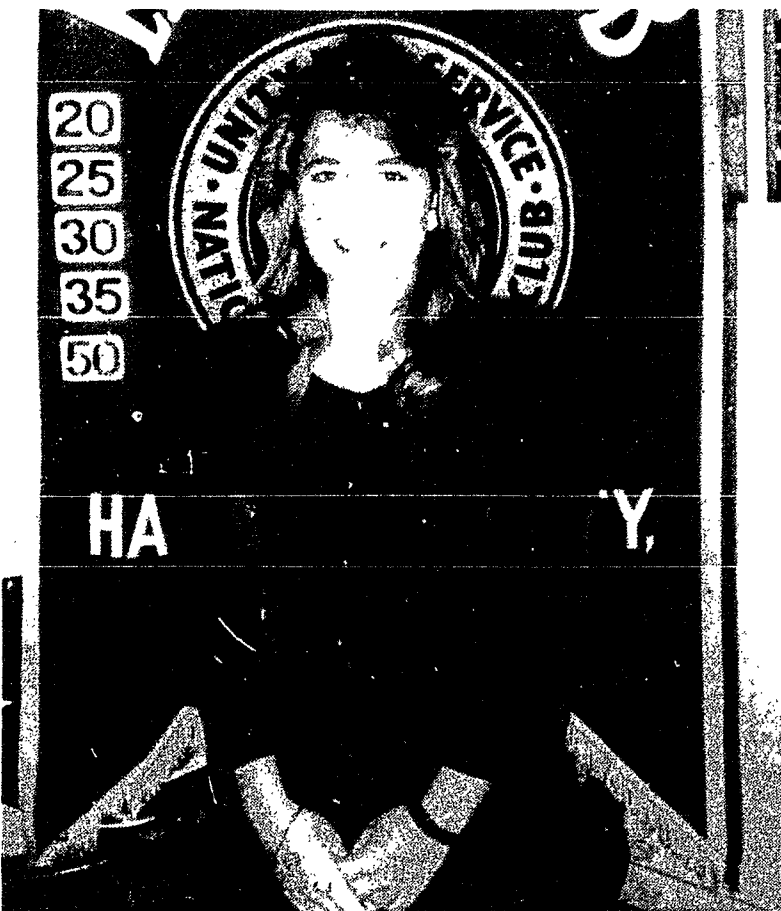

The addition also will provide expanded education facilities, a new restaurant, a new shop, and other public and non-public areas.

The immediate economic impact in sales taxes to the city and state from the museum construction alone is estimated at $1 million. When the expanded and refurbished museum opens, a projected 300,000 annual visitors are expected to bring an additional $2 million per year in city and state tax revenues.

How most people deal with the symptoms of a heart attack.

Hiding from a problem doesn't make it go away. In fact, hiding from the symptoms of a heart attack can make the problem worse. Much worse.

Be alert to heart attack symptoms. Chest pain and pressure are the most common. Pain may radiate down your arm, neck or shoulder. There's also shortness of breath. Cold sweat. Dizziness. Faintness and nausea.

Sometimes only a few symptoms occur. Sometimes more. Sometimes the symptoms can even be due to another problem.

Only one thing is certain. The sooner heart problems are treated, the better your chance of recovery.

That's why we're here. The Heart Emergency Service at NorthShore Regional Medical Center is the first of its kind in this area. Located in our Emergency Department, we save lives by detecting heart problems rapidly and providing necessary treatment.

If you experience any symptoms of a heart attack, get immediate medical attention. Anytime, day or night, you can call our emergency 24-Hour Heartline at 1-800-HEART-13. An emergency care professional is available around the clock to answer questions, give advice or even dispatch an ambulance if necessary.

The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center offers a complete range of cardiac care services. That's important to you during those first critical hours following a heart attack. And although you'll probably never need them, it's good to know our heart team is available 24 hours a day.

We employ powerful clot-dissolving drugs that can save lives by stopping and, in some instances, actually reversing the effects of heart attacks. The sooner these drugs are administered the better the chance of a complete recovery.

And advanced diagnostic capabilities, including our state-of-the-art cardiac catheterization laboratory, help us assess and treat heart problems more accurately and effectively than ever.

We also offer educational programs that help people prevent heart attacks, and rehabilitation services that help heart patients recover faster and more fully.

Learn more about The Heart Center at NorthShore Regional Medical Center by calling (504) 641-MDMD and we'll send you a free brochure that describes our cardiac services in greater detail.

Remember, don't hide from any symptoms of a heart attack. Go to the nearest hospital emergency department. If you're close to NorthShore Regional Medical Center, use the Heart Emergency Service in our Emergency Department located just east of Interstate 10 on 190—Exit 266—Gause Boulevard. Or call 1-800-HEART-13. Don't hide. Seek help.
